BERLIN ADMITS DEFEAT IN RUSSIAN POLAND

Kaiser's Troops Forced to Withdraw From Ivongorod, Warsaw and Novo Georgievsk—Both Sides Have Been Receiving Reinforcements—Allies Claim to Have Made Gains at Several Points on the Front of the Battle Line, Particularly Around Ypres, Belgium, and South of Arras, in France—Some of the German's Trenches Have Been Captured.

(By International News Service)
Paris, Oct. 29.—After a lull in the fighting caused by the exhaustion of the troops, the battle in Flanders, along the Yser has been renewed, according to late official advice.

Both the Germans and the allies have been reinforced.

Big Guns at the Front
The French artillery has at last been successful in getting to the front over the rain-soaked roads. A number of big guns have been placed to combat the cannon of the Germans.

Dixmude has been destroyed, according to information given out here today.

Allies Make Gains
Gains by the allies at several points on the front, particularly around Yser, Belgium, and south of Arras, France, are announced officially today.

There is nothing new on the front from Nieuport to Dixmude.

Between the Aisne and Argonne the allies have captured some of the enemy's trenches. None of the German's partial attacks are succeeding.

Germans Said to be Retreating
London, Oct. 29.—An Evening News dispatch dated Northern France and timed 7 o'clock yesterday morning says:

"It is reported here that the Germans are falling back all along the line from La Bassée to the sea."

The official communication issued by the French war office last night says:

"In Belgium two night attacks attempted by the enemy in the region of Dixmude have been repulsed. The German effort on the front between Nieuport and Dixmude appears to be moderating. Our offensive continues to the north of Ypres."

"Between La Bassée and Lens there has been slight progress on our part."

Filibustering Plot Nipped in Texas

(By International News Service)
Laredo, Texas, Oct. 29.—A plot to organize a filibustering expedition to invade Mexico from American side was nipped in the bud when United States military officers and marshals arrested four officers belonging to Villa's army this morning.

The prisoners are charged with violating the neutrality laws. Several others are being sought.

The prisoners are accused of enlisting a thousand Mexicans on the American side to attack Carranza's garrison at Nuevo Laredo.

A Penrose Postmaster Holds up Roosevelt Cords

(By International News Service)
Greenville, Oct. 29.—Postmaster Martin has been holding up a large batch of Roosevelt postcards sent out by the Progressive party. The postcard managers and addressed to local voters.

Postmaster Martin bases his action on the ground that the postcards are defamatory of Senator Penrose and therefore violated the postal laws.

announcement issued in Berlin yesterday, have been forced to withdraw before fresh Russian forces advancing from Ivongorod, Warsaw and Novo Georgievsk after having repulsed all former Russian attacks. The official statement continued:

"At first the Russians did not follow and the withdrawal of four troops took place without difficulty. The reserve troops will change their formation according to the situation."

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT THE OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

There will be a Republican rally in the opera house this evening. Among the speakers will be Mr. Crago, senator-elect from Pennsylvania, A. H. Woodward, Esq., and Emerson Collins, Esq., of Williamsport.

Mr. Collins is an eloquent speaker who some years ago made himself prominent in the fifteenth congressional district by opposing the election of the then Penrose boss in that district, Elias Deemer.

These voters who wish to learn what apologies can be made for Penroseism will attend tonight's meeting.

CHICKEN AND WAFFLES.

REPRESENTATIVE RUPPELY ON WORK OF CONGRESS

Representative Arthur Rupely, Progressive, of Pennsylvania, says of the congress which has just adjourned:

"After remaining in Washington for eighteen months, I say that the achievements of this unprecedented long session are remarkable. The great constructive measures that were passed by this congress were passed with the assistance of Progressives and so-called Progressive Republicans. On the big administration measures the Progressives were aligned with the Democrats. We found the Democratic leaders in the house and in the administration were only endeavoring to carry out the principles of the Progressive platform. In the future we will demonstrate that the Progressive party should have been entrusted with the passage of these great constructive pieces of legislation. What has been accomplished, however, is a step in the right direction. We would have made the step longer. The one big blot on the achievements of the Democratic administration is the failure to pass the immigration bill. At the last session it nearly passed over the veto of a Republican president. This was the real failure of the session of the party now in power."

THE LAST STAND BY TWO IRISHMEN

Stood off a German Patrol, Although One Was Wounded

KILLED HALF OF THEIR FOES

When the Uhlans Brought Up a Machine Gun and Threatened to Destroy the House in Which They Had Taken Refuge They Dashed Out and Tried to Capture the Gun.

(By International News Service)
Paris, Oct. 29.—Irishmen fighting Britain's battles in France today are proving themselves worthy of the finest traditions of their race. There have been many stories of their endurance and pluck, but two related by a trooper of the Irish Dragoons may be taken as typical: "There was a man of ours," says the trooper, "who carried a chum to a farmhouse under fire, and when the retreat came got left behind. The German patrol called and found them. There were only the two, one wounded, against a dozen Uhlans. Behind a barrier of furniture they kept the Germans at bay, wounding or killing half of them. The Germans made off and brought a machine gun to the house and threatened to destroy it."

"The two soldiers were not unmindful of the kindness shown them by the owners of the farm, and rather than bring loss on them or the village they made a rush out with some mad idea of taking the gun."

"Just over the threshold of the door they fell dead, their blood splattering the walls of the house."

"People may call them pig-headed for not surrendering, but that sort of wrong-headedness is worth a lot as inspiration to others, and if British soldiers had always worried about what the stay-at-homes would think of their deeds, some of the finest stories in the history of the army could never have been told."

"There was a young chap of the Irish rifles," He was kneeling beside a wounded man of the Gloucesters, I think keeping off the Germans, who were circling round the position. He had been hit himself, but was gamely doing his duty as long as his wounded arm would permit. We went to his assistance but they were both worn out when we found them and, deathly to our regret, we had to leave them to be picked up by the Red Cross people."

"That was hard; but if you tried to pick up every wounded man you saw you wouldn't be much use as a fighter."

AMERICANS EAGER TO ENLIST IN CANADA

(By International News Service)
London, Oct. 29.—Major General Hughes, Canadian minister for defense, said here that it would be impossible to keep Americans from joining the ranks of Canadian volunteers.

"We are prepared to furnish 200,000 Americans have gone to Canada in the hope of joining the Canadian forces, and how will they be prevented from doing so if it is their desire to join?"

General Hughes said the Canadians had a fine reception here and that the sentiment was the subject of great attraction in the camp at Salisbury. The general expects to return to Canada soon.

Many members of the Canadian contingent have visited London in the last few days. Relatives of some of the officers came to England to meet the troops when they arrived.

RIGHT TO SEARCH SHIPS RECOGNIZED BY AMERICA

(By International News Service)
Washington, Oct. 29.—The right to search American merchant ships on the high sea, against which the Americans fought in 1812 will be admitted by the state department during the present war. Announcement to this effect was made by Acting Secretary State Lansing today. His statement followed the publication by the treasury department of a prohibition against making public the manifests of merchant ships leaving American ports until a month after they have sailed.

Lansing said: "The right to search all vessels on the high seas will not be opposed by this government. The right of Great Britain or any other nation engaged in war to stop American ship and examine her cargo, no matter what its nature or destination, is recognized. All future protests or complaints filed by the United States will be based on this conclusion."

The right to search ships is a long established principle of international law. It is a principle which the United States has always recognized.

Gasoline Motor Tricycle Collided With Freight Car

OCCUPANTS THROWN FROM CAR

Heber Wolf Sustains a Broken Leg in Two Places, While Harry Barnes Has His Arm Broken and an Ugly Gash Cut in His Face—Other Members of Party Bruised.

Last evening about 6:45 o'clock, while a party of men were returning from Houtzdale on the gasoline motor tricycle owned by Superintendent of the Pittsburgh-Susquehanna railroad, the car collided with a freight car standing on the track about 50 yards from Houtzdale, at a sharp curve.

The occupants of the car were Supt. Palmer, Howard Roland, C. R. Rowland's son, Harry Barnes, and Heber Wolf, all of Philipsburg, and Albert Graizer, of Warrior Mark.

After the accident a crowd soon gathered around the injured men and medical aid was procured. Mr. Palmer, who suffered from a broken ankle, was taken to his home. Heber Wolf, who had his leg broken in two places, and Harry Barnes, who had a broken arm and a badly lacerated face, were removed to the McGuirk sanatorium, Philipsburg, where they are getting along nicely. Roland and Graizer both escaped with only a few bruises about their faces.

The men were making an inspection tour over the road and in the gathering darkness failed to see the car standing on the track.

COL. ROOSEVELT ENDS TOUR OF THIS STATE

His Visit to Coal Region Greeted By Immense Crowds

HAS DONE GREAT WORK FOR PINCHOT

Progressive Leader Finds Sentiment Strong for Washington Candidate in Northeastern Part of the State—His Denunciation of Penrose Received Hearty Indorsement in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Other Towns. Self-Respecting Republicans Flocking to the Pinchot Standard.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 29.—All sections of Pennsylvania stand together in the determination to drive Boies Penrose out of public life and put Gifford Pinchot in his place as political leader of the state.

This was fully verified yesterday by the trip of the "Teddy Special" through the farming district of York and Lancaster counties and the Democratic stronghold of Berks, where the people turned out as strongly and as enthusiastically as did the anthracite miners of Schuylkill and the steel workers of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Cambria and Blair in the anti-Penrose movement led by Theodore Roosevelt.

CLIMAX OF THE TRIP

The climax of the day's trip, demonstrating how solidly Pennsylvania is lined up behind Colonel Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot against Penrose, came last night, when 15,000 people packed the Scranton armory to cheer themselves hoarse for the whole Washington party ticket.

For genuine enthusiasm the armory meeting last night has probably never been equaled in this state anywhere in any campaign. Outside the armory hall and in the streets for a full mile from the Delaware and Hudson Railroad station fully 15,000 more persons, who could not possibly get into the hall to hear Colonel Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot, stood lined up solidly for block after block cheering the procession of the Roosevelt party.

WILL PLAY HUNTINGDON ELEVEN HERE SATURDAY

The football game which will be played at the Driving park Saturday afternoon will undoubtedly be the best game that has been played in Clearfield so far this season.

The visitors come here with a long string of victories to their credit and a big reputation for playing fast, clean football.

During the past few days the local high school team has been working especially hard on the development of their forward pass and open field plays, a big variety of which will be used in their attack on Huntingdon Saturday.

The C. H. S. team has shown a particular aptitude for this system of play in its past games and the crowd at the next test Saturday will see a larger number and greater variety of them than ever before.

Behind the half dozen automobiles of the Roosevelt party marched a thousand of the city's most prominent citizens, ministers, business men and leaders of the labor unions. And they were all Scranton people.

IN ROOSEVELT DISTRICT

Wilkes-Barre gave a reception of its own to Colonel Roosevelt an hour before Scranton was reached, and all through Luzerne county, the famous Roosevelt county of the United States in 1912, the people turned out by thousands at every crossroad and station to tell Colonel Roosevelt that they are with him as solidly as ever against Penrose and for Pinchot.

IF FURTHER DEMONSTRATION WAS NEEDED to verify Colonel Roosevelt's statement that Pinchot is the only man who can beat Penrose and that Palmer is not in the race, it has been furnished through the fact that a recent Palmer and McCormack rally here filled only the town hall with 3000 people as compared with last night's incomparable demonstration.

IN DEMOCRATIC RENDING

Democratic Rending, which filled its auditorium with 4000 at a noonday Pinchot rally and held 5000 more people at an overflow meeting in the Center Square, lent particular emphasis to Colonel Roosevelt's statement that decent Democrats have left Palmer for Pinchot and liquor Democrats have left him for Penrose.

Republican Scranton, or Lackawanna county, lent still stronger emphasis to Colonel Roosevelt's declaration that decent Republicans are flocking to Pinchot also because they cannot vote for Penrose and retain their self-respect.

VIGOR IN COLONEL'S PUNCH

And the spirit of the people is met by Colonel Roosevelt in no uncertain manner. He drives the punches into Penrose and Penroseism with ever-increasing vigor, swiftness and certainty of aim.

The Rev. T. T. Richards opened the meeting to the armory hosts here last night, referring to Colonel Roosevelt as the "seventeenth-inch slug gun of Progressivism, which will which to cover the retreat, we had

October 29, 1914

Each day sees A. Mitchell Palmer dwindle in size, politically, at least.

Vote for the Washington candidates for assembly—Woodward, Lippert and Boose—and insure three votes in favor of honest state government.

Colonel Roosevelt didn't bother with the right and left wings of the Penrose forces, but made his chief attack upon the center of the line.

With winter coming on the soldiers who are trying to kill each other in that European war may have a rest long enough to inquire what it is all about.

Good evening! Of course, you will be glad when the election is over, and you will be glad when it is over if you will help to elect good men to office.

President Wilson and eight members of his cabinet are electioneering for the Democratic ticket, and the job is by no means an easy one under the circumstances.

Even the Altoona Tribune, tied to Penrose as tight as it is, was forced to confess that the largest crowd in the history of the Mishler theater building greeted Colonel Roosevelt Tuesday evening.

What the intelligent voter cannot understand is why the Penrose Republicans are denouncing the Democrats for their blunders when the intelligent voter knows that it was Penrose who helped to place the Democrats in power.

Even before the European war is over the United States government should have a reckoning with the Marcos. Wireless company, which appears to think that it can do about as it pleases in the matter of sending messages which are likely to get the United States into an international squabble of words, if nothing more serious.

There is certain to be a big lot of families from the European nations emigrating to the United States after the war is over. Let us hope these forthcoming emigrants will appreciate the freedom of this country much more than do some of the hyphenated residents who are now here because they could not get along in their own countries.

LIBERAL RESPONSE

Indications point to the quick collection of the amount needed to liquidate the indebtedness against the Clearfield hospital. The men who have the matter in hand are meeting with very few rebuffs, the citizens generously subscribing to the fund because of their desire to see the hospital free from the burden which has for several years hung upon the shoulders of the trustees and in order that the beneficent offer of Astbury W. Lee may be made available.

The Clearfield hospital has been doing excellent work among the sick and injured, and it can be put in condition to do much more effective work in the future. There are some citizens who have been backward in giving financial aid to the hospital on the ground that he public has not been taken into the confidence of the officials of the institution, but this cause of complaint may be removed in the coming years through an annual itemized statement of the receipts and expenditures of the hospital such as are issued from institutions of the kind in other towns and cities of the state.

The public feels that it has a right to know what use has been made of the money it contributes to a hospital. Also, the public believes that the manner in which a hospital is managed should be made known in order that contributors may know whether or not there is wastefulness or lack of economy. No doubt the officials of the Clearfield hospital will give these matters their attention after the present financial condition of the hospital has been satisfactorily attended to. In the meantime the few remaining dollars necessary to pay off the debt should be subscribed so that the hospital may start the new year with a clean slate.

SMASH PENROSEISM

Colonel Roosevelt asks the voters of Pennsylvania to smash the Penrose machine. The colonel merely expresses the opinion of a large majority of the people of Pennsylvania, who have for several years blushed with shame when the evils of Penroseism were mentioned in their presence. Penroseism stands for all that is menacing to honest state government. It stands for monopoly, the ruin traffic and enmity to labor. There is no successful denial of this.

Penroseism cannot be smashed unless Penrose and every Penrose candidate is defeated at the polls. The good people of this state know that Penrose does not represent them; that he misrepresents them, in fact. There are enough friends of good government in this state to overwhelm Penrose and his followers if they combine their strength. There was never a better opportunity to deal the deathblow to Penroseism than there will be next Tuesday by defeating Penrose himself and all of the Penrose candidates.

Colonel Roosevelt is telling the people of this state that the only way to smash Penroseism is to elect Gifford Pinchot to the United States senate. Pinchot stands for everything which Penrose opposes—local option, justice to the wage earner, a cleaning out of the state government, honest state officials who will not squander the people's money, and everything else against which Penrose and his henchmen have arrayed themselves for years. Pinchot is the champion of the people's cause, and the people should rally to his support.

MOULTHROP WITH THE PEOPLE

Hon. A. S. Moulthrop, Washington party candidate for state senator, has stood loyally by the people of this state. As a member of the legislature he won a high place in the estimation of the people by his determined stand in favor of reforms in state and county administrations. It was through his efforts that the act of assembly providing for the payment of a percentage to county treasurers for handling money was repealed, thus saving to the taxpayers of Clearfield county something like thirty thousand dollars in the past eight years.

In a number of other instances Mr. Moulthrop has proven that he was faithful to the people and that his desire was to lessen the burdens of the taxpayers. He is a young man of ability, energy and judgment. He is active in advocating changes in the state administration which would bring about honest government and put a stop to the practices which have prevailed at the state capital for years and through which the people's money has been wasted.

Mr. Moulthrop has had experience as a legislator, and experience which will stand him in good stead when he enters the state senate. It is in the senate that most of the crooked work chargeable to Penroseism has its origin, and Mr. Moulthrop believes that he will be able to do as effective work in that body as he did in the lower house of the legislature. The people of Clearfield county know Mr. Moulthrop, and they know he is sincere and conscientious. This is why it can be predicted that Mr. Moulthrop will receive a large vote from voters of all political parties and that Clearfield county will give him a large majority to add to that he will receive in Center county.

OBITUARY
Flynn.
Martin M. Flynn, a pioneer lumberman and raftsmen, of Grampian, died at the Grampian hotel, where he made his home, Tuesday morning at 6:30.
The deceased was a life-long resident in this county as being a very active man in lumbering circles in the early days. He was 72 years of age, having been born in May, 1842 in Grampian. He was proprietor of the Grampian hotel in the early eighties. In 1888 he was candidate for mayor of Clearfield county on the Democratic ticket, and was defeated for the office. For the past few years he has been doing draying and was in his death he was constable of Grampian borough. His wife preceded him to his grave several years ago.
The deceased is survived by two sons and six daughters. Funeral services will probably be held in Grampian on Thursday. Interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery.

Wingert
Samuel Wingert, one of the oldest and best known residents of Brady township, passed away at his home near Luthersburg, early Sunday morning.
Mr. Wingert was born in 1847 in Jefferson county, and in 1874 married Sarah Buchert, nine children being born to them, as follows: Mrs. Jane Hummel, of Curwensville; Mary, of Bradford; Mrs. Clarence Reish, of West Virginia; Florence, at home; James, of Curwensville; Charles, of Bradford; Harvey, of the state of Washington; Silas and Glen, at home.
He was a member of the Brady lodge of the K. of P. of Salem, who had charge of the funeral which was held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the late home.

MAP OF THE EASTERN THEATRE OF WAR

This map gives an accurate idea of the relative location of the scenes of the two great engagements that are now being fought by the Germans, Austrians and Russians in the Eastern Theatre of War. In the northern battle field at the Niemen river recent reports stated that a successful advancing German body, a-b, was pressing back a Russian defending body, c-d, while down south, near the upper Vistula, a much larger Russian body, g-h, is advancing against a correspondingly larger German force, e-f. The result of the action between e-f and g-h would ultimately control the movements of the action a-b, c-d.

Prohibition a Success.

Prohibition has been a success in Oregon, Eugene, Albany and Corvallis, leading cities of the Willamette valley, cite their prosperity from the time when they went dry.

Not a foot of paving was in any of these cities when they went dry, seven or eight years ago. Today they are well paved, their sidewalks are excellent, splendid stores and public buildings abound, fine residences are numerous.

Up until the present year, Salem, the only other city in the Willamette valley which could compare with them, continued to have the licensed saloon. The saloon word from the city was in the three dry cities were much to be ground on which to set ponds. Certain it is that they have grown in population much more rapidly.

West Virginia Prospers.

"Our police courts practically idle. They say you can't enforce prohibition. You can't! Last week, for the first time in the history of the state, a grand jury adjourned without finding a single offense worthy of indictment."

So said Fred G. Blue in an address at Memorial Hall, Columbus, Ohio, recently. Mr. Blue declared that prohibition has not hurt business. "Wheeling has turned her brewery into a packing house," he said, "and it employs three times as many men as it did in Charleston. The brewery has become an ice plant, and we are to have cheaper ice. One block in Wheeling where there were 14 saloons has seen every one of these places reared for other business, some at advanced rents. A big dealer in that block writes that his business has increased 35 per cent since he went dry."

Mr. Blue declared that the success of prohibition in West Virginia is due to the nature of the law, which is to draw out the physicians cannot give a prescription for wine or whiskey.

lessens the value of property and raises the fire insurance rates.

When a man engages in a profession which is a monopoly, he is bound to pay a price for the privilege of doing so. The burden of taxation which promotes crime, disease and social degradation is the common property of the people. The people have a right to demand that the government should not be a party to such a system.

BURGESS ASKS CITIZENS TO CLEAN PREMISES

Burgess Callahan desires the citizens of Clearfield to clean up about their premises before the snows of winter fall. He has issued the following proclamation.

To the Citizens of Clearfield:
Cleanliness is conducive to good health and good morals, and I wish to thank everybody for what has been accomplished in the past summer towards keeping our town clean, for we have not had a communicable disease for almost five weeks, which is a most creditable record.

Now I kindly ask you to clean up. Do not let the beautiful snow cover up your filth. Clean up! Clean up the lots, the front yards, back yards and all the alleys. Do not be afraid you will pick up something you did not put there. Clean up everything and our people will rise up and call you blessed.

Your Honored Servant,
HOBART CALLAHAN, Burgess.

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

(Copyright, 1914, by Harold MacGrath)

"Don't worry none about me, Betty. I never take no chances. Now I'm goin' 'int' th' village an' bring back th' sawbones. He'll tell us what 't do."

The village doctor shook his grizzled head gravely.

"She's been hurt and shocked at the same time. It will be many days before she comes around to herself. Just let her do as she pleases. Only keep an eye on her so that she doesn't wander off and get lost. I'll watch the newspapers and if I come across anything which bears upon the case I'll notify you."

But he searched the newspapers in vain, for the simple fact that he did not think to glance over the old ones.

The village took a good deal of interest in the affair. They gossiped about it and strolled out to the Barnes' cottage to satisfy their curiosity. One thing was certain to their simple minds: some day Barnes would get a great sum of money for his kindness. They had read about such things in the family story paper. She was a rich man's daughter; the ring on the unknown's finger would have fitted out a fleet.

Florence was soon able to walk about. Ordinary conversation she seemed to understand; but whenever the past was broached she would shake her head with frowning eyes. Her main diversion consisted of sitting on the sand dunes and gazing out at sea.

One day a stranger came to town. He said he represented a life insurance company and was up here from Boston to take a little vacation. He sat on the hotel porch that evening, surrounded by an admiring audience. The stranger had been all over the world, so it seemed. He spoke familiarly of St. Petersburg, Vladivostok, Shanghai, as the villagers—some of them—might have spoken of Boston. There were one or two old timers among the audience. They had been to all these parts. The stranger knew what he was telling about. After telling of his many voyages he asked if there was a good bathing beach nearby. He was told that he would find the most suitable spot near Captain Barnes' cottage just outside the village.

"An' say, Mister, seen anything in th' papers about a missin' young woman?" asked some one.

"Missin' young woman? What's that?"

The man told the story of Florence's leap into the sea and her subsequent arrival at the cape.

"That's funny," said the stranger. "I don't recollect reading about any young woman being lost at sea. But those big liners are always keeping such things under cover. Hoodooes the ship, they say, and turns prospective passengers to other lines. It hurts business. What's the young girl look like?"

Florence was described minutely. The stranger tasted in his chair and smoked. Finally he spoke.

"She probably was insane. That's the way generally with insane people. They can't see water or look off a tall building without wanting to jump. My business is insurance, and we've got the thing figured pretty close to the ground. They used to get the best of us on the suicide game. A man would take out a large policy today and tomorrow he'd blow his head off, and we'd have to pay his wife. But nowadays a policy is not worth the paper it's written on if a man commits suicide under two years."

"You ain't tryin' to insure anybody in town, are you?"

"Oh, no. No work for me when I'm on my vacation. Well, I'm going to bed; and tomorrow morning I'll go out to Captain Barnes' beach and have a good swim. I'm no sailor, but I like water."

He honestly enjoyed swimming. Shilly the next morning he was in the water, frolicking about as playfully as a boy. He had all the time in the world. Over his shoulder he saw two women wandering down toward the beach. Deeper he went, farther out, he was a bold swimmer, but that did not prevent a sudden and violent attack of cramps. And it was a rare piece of irony that the poor girl should save the life of that scoundrel who was without pity or mercy. As she saw his face a startled frown marred her brow. But she could not figure out the puzzle. Had she ever seen the man before? She did not know, she could not tell. Why could not she remember? Why must her poor head ache so when she tried to pierce the wall of darkness which surrounded her mentally?

The man thanked her feebly, but not in his heart. When he had sufficiently recovered he returned to the village and sought the railway station, where the Western Union had its office.

"I want to send a code message to my firm. Do you think you can follow it?"

"I can try," said the operator.

The code was really Slats, and when the long message was signed it was signed by the name Vron.

The day after the news came that Florence had jumped overboard at the banks, Vron with a dozen other men had started out to comb all the fishing villages along the New England coast. Somewhere along the way he felt confident that he would learn whether the girl was dead or alive.

Braine Took Florence Aboard the Chartered Yacht.

take a hand in. So the following night he departed for Boston, from there to New York. He proceeded at once to the apartment of the princess, where Braine declared that he himself would go to the obscure village and claim Florence as his own child. But to insure absolute success they would charter Morse's yacht and steam right up into the primitive harbor.

When Vron left the apartment Norton saw him. He was a man of impulses, and he had found by experience that first impulses are generally the best. He did not know who Vron was. Any man who called on the Princess Perigoff while Braine was with her would be worth following.

On the other hand, Vron recognized the reporter instantly and with that ever-ready and alert mind of his set about to lure the young man into a trap out of which he might not easily come.

Norton decided to follow his man. He might be going on a wild-goose chase, he reasoned; still his first impulses had hitherto served him well. He looked careworn. He was convinced that Florence was dead, despite the assertions of Jones to the contrary. He had gone over all the mishaps which had taken place and he was now absolutely convinced that his willful friend Braine and the Princess Perigoff were directly concerned. Florence had either been going to or coming from the apartment. And that memorable day of the abduction the princess had been in the dry goods shop.

Vron took a downtown surface car, and Norton took the same. He sat huddled in a corner, never suspecting that Vron was watching him from a corner of his eye. Norton was not keen today. The thought of Florence kept running through his head.

The car stopped and Vron got off. He led Norton a winding course which at length ended at the door of a tenement building. Vron entered. Norton paused, wondering what next to do, now that his man had reached his destination. Well, since he had followed him all this distance he must make an effort to find out who he was and what he was going to do. Cautiously he entered the hallway. As he was about to lay his hand on the newel post of the dilapidated stairs the floor dropped from under his feet and he was precipitated into the cellar. This tenement belonged to the Black Hundred, it concealed a thousand doors and a hundred traps. Its history was as dark as its hallways.

When Vron and his companion, who had been waiting for him, de-scented into the cellar they found the reporter insensible. They bound, blindfolded, and gagged him quickly.

"Saunders," said Vron, "you tell Corrigan that I've a sailor for him tonight, and that I want this sailor booked for somewhere south of the equator. Tell him to say to the master that this fellow is ugly and disobedient. A tramp freighter, whose captain is a bully. Do you understand me?"

"I get you. But there's no need to go to Corrigan this trip. Bannock is in port and sails tonight for Norway. That's far enough."

"Bannock?" The very man. Well, Mr. Norton, reporter and amateur detective, I guess we've got you fast enough this time. You may or may not come back alive. Go and bring around a taxi, some one you can trust. I'll dope the reporter while you're gone.

Long hours afterward Norton opened his aching eyes. He could hardly move and his head buzzed abominably. What had happened? What was the meaning of this slow rise and fall of his bed? Shaghalled?

"Come out o' that now, ye skulk-er!" roared a voice down the companionway.

"Shaghalled?" the reporter murmured. He sat up and ran through his pockets. Not a sou-markee, not a match even, and a second glance told him that the clothes he wore were not his own. "They've landed me this time," Shaghalled? What the devil am I going to do?"

"Dye hear me?" bawled the strident voice again.

Norton looked about desperately for some weapon of defense. He saw an engineer's spanner on the floor by the bunk across the way, and with no small physical effort he succeeded in obtaining it. He stood up, his hand behind his back.

"All right, me bucko! I'll come down an' git ye!"

A pair of enormous boots began to appear down the companionway, and there gradually rose up from them a man as wide as a church door and as deep as a well.

"Wait a moment," said Norton, gripping the spanner. "Let us have a perfect understanding right off the bat."

"We're going t' have it, matey. Don't ye worry none."

Norton raised the spanner, and, dizzy as he was, faced this seafaring Hercules courageously.

"I've been shaghalled, and you know it. Where are we bound?"

"Copenhagen."

"Well, for a month or more you'll beat me up whenever the opportunity offers. But I merely wish to warn you that if you do you'll find a heap of trouble waiting for you the next time you drop your mudhook in North America."

"Is that so?" said the giant, eying the spanner and the shaking hand that held it aloft.

"It is. I'll take your orders and do the best I can, because you've got the upper hand. But, God is witness, you'll pay for every needless blow you strike. Now what do you want me to do?"

"Lay down that spanner an' come on deck, I'll tell ye what t' do. I was goin' t' while th' daylight out o' ye; t' ye're somethin' av a man. Drop the spanner first."

Norton hesitated. As lithe as a tiger the bulk of a man sprang at him and crushed him to the floor, wrenching away the spanner. Then the giant took Norton by the scruff of his neck and banged him up the steps to the deck.

"I ain't goin' t' hurt ye. I had t' show ye that no spanner ever bothered Mike Bannock. Now, d' know what a cook's galley is?"

"I do," said Norton, breathing hard.

"Well, hike there an' start in with peelin' spuds, an' don't waste 'em n' ther. That'll be all fer th' present. Ye were due for a wallop'n' but I kinda like yer spunk."

So Jim stumbled down to the cook's galley and grimly set to work at the potatoes. It might have been far worse. But here he was, likely to be on the high seas for months, and no way of notifying Jones what had happened. The outlook was anything but cheerful. But a vague hope awoke in his heart. If they were still after him might it not signify that Florence lived.

Meantime Braine had not been idle. According to Vron the girl's memory was in bad shape, so he had not the least doubt of bringing her back to New York without mishap. Once he had her there the game would begin in earnest. He played his cards exceedingly well. Steaming up into the little fishing harbor with a handsome yacht in itself would allay any distrust. And he wore a capital disguise too. Everything went well till he laid his hand on Florence's shoulder. She gave a startled cry and ran over to Barnes, clinging to him wildly.

"No, no!" she cried.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mix the Sage Tea and Sulphur (from Allen's) at home, though, is trouble-free. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores. Knew as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Restorer", avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and at a price. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, be as it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully and glossy soft and luxuriant.

French Big Guns Succeed in Getting to the Front at Last

BERLIN ADMITS DEFEAT IN RUSSIAN POLAND

Kaiser's Troops Forced to Withdraw From Ivongorod, Warsaw and Novo Georgievsk—Both Sides Have Been Receiving Reinforcements—Allies Claim to Have Made Gains at Several Points on the Front of the Battle Line, Particularly Around Ypres, Belgium, and South of Arras, in France—Some of the German's Trenches Have Been Captured.

(By International News Service)
Paris, Oct. 29.—After a lull in the fighting caused by the exhaustion of the troops, the battle in Flanders, along the Yser has been renewed, according to late official advice.

Both the Germans and the allies have been reinforced.

Big Guns at the Front
The French artillery has at last been successful in getting to the front over the rain-soaked roads. A number of big guns have been placed to combat the cannon of the Germans.

Dixmude has been destroyed, according to information given out here today.

Allies Make Gains
Gains by the allies at several points on the front, particularly around Yser, Belgium, and south of Arras, France, are announced officially today.

There is nothing new on the front from Nieuport to Dixmude.

Between the Aisne and Argonne the allies have captured some of the enemy's trenches. None of the German's partial attacks are succeeding.

Germans Said to be Retreating
London, Oct. 29.—An Evening News dispatch dated Northern France and timed 7 o'clock yesterday morning says:

"It is reported here that the Germans are falling back all along the line from La Bassée to the sea."

The official communication issued by the French war office last night says:

"In Belgium two night attacks attempted by the enemy in the region of Dixmude have been repulsed. The German effort on the front between Nieuport and Dixmude appears to be moderating. Our offensive continues to the north of Ypres."

"Between La Bassée and Lens there has been slight progress on our part."

"At first the Russians did not follow and the withdrawal of four troops took place without difficulty. The reserve troops will change their formation according to the situation."

REPUBLICAN RALLY AT THE OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

There will be a Republican rally in the opera house this evening. Among the speakers will be Mr. Crago, senator-elect from Pennsylvania, A. H. Woodward, Esq., and Emerson Collins, Esq., of Williamsport.

Mr. Collins is an eloquent speaker who some years ago made himself prominent in the fifteenth congressional district by opposing the election of the then Penrose boss in that district, Elias Deemer.

These voters who wish to learn what apologies can be made for Penroseism will attend tonight's meeting.

REPRESENTATIVE RUPPELY ON WORK OF CONGRESS

Representative Arthur Rupely, Progressive, of Pennsylvania, says of the congress which has just adjourned:

"After remaining in Washington for eighteen months, I say that the achievements of this unprecedented long session are remarkable. The great constructive measures that were passed by this congress were passed with the assistance of Progressives and so-called Progressive Republicans. On the big administration measures the Progressives were aligned with the Democrats. We found the Democratic leaders in the house and in the administration were only endeavoring to carry out the principles of the Progressive platform. In the future we will demonstrate that the Progressive party should have been entrusted with the passage of these great constructive pieces of legislation. What has been accomplished, however, is a step in the right direction. We would have made the step longer. The one big blot on the achievements of the Democratic administration is the failure to pass the immigration bill. At the last session it nearly passed over the veto of a Republican president. This was the real failure of the session of the party now in power."

Filibustering Plot Nipped
in Texas

(By International News Service)
Laredo, Texas, Oct. 29.—A plot to organize a filibustering expedition to invade Mexico from American side was nipped in the bud when United States military officers and marshals arrested four officers belonging to Villa's army this morning.

The prisoners are charged with violating the neutrality laws. Several others are being sought. The prisoners are accused of enlisting a thousand Mexicans on the American side to attack Carranza's garrison at Nuevo Laredo.

A Penrose Postmaster Holds up Roosevelt Cords

(By International News Service)
Greenville, Oct. 29.—Postmaster Martin has been holding up a large batch of Roosevelt postcards and cut by the Progressive party. The postmaster has been addressed to local voters.

Postmaster Martin bases his action on the ground that the postcards are defamatory of Senator Penrose and therefore violated the postal laws.

Some local Progressive leaders declare they will have the postmaster's ruling nullified by a writ from the federal court. They charge that he has flagrantly covered up the bounds of the discretionary powers of his office and is therefore amenable as any other individual to the laws dealing with them.

Postmaster Martin says he stood within the law.

Stood off a German Patrol, Although One Was Wounded

KILLED HALF OF THEIR FOES

When the Uhlans Brought Up a Machine Gun and Threatened to Destroy the House in Which They Had Taken Refuge They Dashed Out and Tried to Capture the Gun.

(By International News Service)
Paris, Oct. 29.—Irishmen fighting Britain's battles in France today are proving themselves worthy of the finest traditions of their race. There have been many stories of their endurance and pluck, but two related by a trooper of the Irish Dragoons may be taken as typical: "There was a man of ours," says the trooper, "who carried a chum to a farmhouse under fire, and when the retreat came got left behind. The German patrol called and found them. There were only the two, one wounded, against a dozen Uhlans. Behind a barrier of furniture they kept the Germans at bay, wounding or killing half of them. The Germans made off and brought a machine gun to the house and threatened to destroy it."

"The two soldiers were not unmindful of the kindness shown them by the owners of the farm, and rather than bring loss on them or the village they made a rush out with some mad idea of taking the gun."

"Just over the threshold of the door they fell dead, their blood splattering the walls of the house."

"People may call them pig-headed for not surrendering, but that sort of wrong-headedness is worth a lot as inspiration to others, and if British soldiers had always worried about what the stay-at-homes would think of their deeds, some of the finest stories in the history of the army could never have been told."

"There was a young chap of the Irish rifles," He was kneeling beside a wounded man of the Gloucesters, I think keeping off the Germans, who were circling round the position. He had been hit himself, but was gamely doing his duty as long as his wounded arm would permit. We went to his assistance but they were both worn out when we found them and, unable to get beyond the house, we had to be picked up by the Red Cross people."

"That was hard; but if you tried to pick up every wounded man you saw you wouldn't be much use as a fighter."

AMERICANS EAGER TO ENLIST IN CANADA

(By International News Service)
London, Oct. 29.—Major General Hughes, Canadian minister for defense, said here that it would be impossible to keep Americans from joining the ranks of Canadian volunteers.

"We are prepared to furnish 200,000 Americans have gone to Canada in the hope of joining the Canadian forces, and how will they be prevented from doing so if it is their desire to join?"

General Hughes said the Canadians had a fine reception here and that the sentiment was the subject of great attraction in the camp of Salisbury. The general expects to return to Canada soon.

Many members of the Canadian contingent have visited London in the last few days. Relatives of some of the officers came to England to meet the troops when they arrived.

RIGHT TO SEARCH SHIPS RECOGNIZED BY AMERICA

(By International News Service)
Washington, Oct. 29.—The right to search American merchant ships on the high sea, against which the Americans fought in 1812 will be admitted by the state department during the present war. Announcement to this effect was made by Acting Secretary State Lansing today. His statement followed the publication by the treasury department of a prohibition against making public the manifests of merchant ships leaving American ports until a month after they have sailed.

Lansing said: "The right to search all vessels on the high seas will not be opposed by this government. The right of Great Britain or any other nation engaged in war to stop American ship and examine her cargo, no matter what its nature or destination, is recognized. All future protests or complaints filed by the United States will be based on this conclusion."

Gasoline Motor Tricycle Collide With Freight Car

OCCUPANTS THROWN FROM CAR

Heber Wolf Sustains a Broken Leg in Two Places, While Harry Barnes Has His Arm Broken and an Ugly Gash Cut in His Face—Other Members of Party Bruised.

Last evening about 6:45 o'clock, while a party of men were returning from Houtzdale on the gasoline motor tricycle owned by Superintendent of the Pittsburgh-Suspquehanna railroad, the car collided with a freight car standing on the track about 50 yards from Houtzdale, at a sharp curve.

The occupants of the car were Supt. Palmer, Howard Roland, C. R. Rowland's son, Harry Barnes, and Heber Wolf, all of Philipsburg, and Albert Grazer, of Warrior Mark.

After the accident a crowd soon gathered around the injured men and medical aid was procured. Mr. Palmer, who suffered from a broken ankle, was taken to his home. Heber Wolf, who had his leg broken in two places, and Harry Barnes, who had a broken arm and a badly lacerated face, were removed to the McGuirk sanatorium, Philipsburg, where they are getting along nicely. Roland and Grazer both escaped with only a few bruises about their faces.

The men were making an inspection tour over the road and in the gathering darkness failed to see the car standing on the track.

Diphtheria at Morrisdale.

Master Rex Wry, son of Ex-governor Charles Wry, of Morrisdale, is seriously ill with diphtheria. Dr. L. C. Harman, of Philipsburg, the family physician is attending the boy. Several new cases of this dread disease have been reported at Allport. The Bord family at that place are all improving, except the mother, who is in a critical condition.

HAS DONE GREAT WORK FOR PINCHOT

Progressive Leader Finds Sentiment Strong for Washington Candidate in Northeastern Part of the State—His Denunciation of Penrose Received Hearty Indorsement in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Other Towns—Self-Respecting Republicans Flocking to the Pinchot Standard.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 29.—All sections of Pennsylvania stand together in the determination to drive Boies Penrose out of public life and put Gifford Pinchot in his place as political leader of the state.

This was fully verified yesterday by the trip of the "Teddy Special" through the farming district of York and Lancaster counties and the Democratic stronghold of Berks, where the people turned out as strongly and as enthusiastically as did the anthracite miners of Schuylkill and the steel workers of Allegheny, Westmoreland, Cambria and Blair in the anti-Penrose movement led by Theodore Roosevelt.

Climax of the Trip
The climax of the day's trip, demonstrating how solidly Pennsylvania is lined up behind Colonel Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot against Penrose, came last night, when 15,000 people packed the Scranton armory to cheer themselves hoarse for the whole Washington party ticket.

For genuine enthusiasm the armory meeting last night has probably never been equaled in this state anywhere in any campaign. Outside the armory hall and in the streets for a full mile from the Delaware and Hudson Railroad station fully 15,000 more persons, who could not possibly get into the hall to hear Colonel Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot, stood lined up solidly for block after block cheering the procession of the Roosevelt party.

Will Play Huntingdon
Eleven Here Saturday

The football game which will be played at the Driving park Saturday afternoon will undoubtedly be the best game that has been played in Clearfield so far this season.

The visitors came here with a long string of victories to their credit and a big reputation for playing fast, clean football.

During the past few days the local high school team has been working especially hard on the development of their forward pass and open field plays, a big variety of which will be used in their attack on Huntingdon Saturday.

The C. H. S. team has shown a particular aptitude for this system of play in its past games and the crowd at the next test Saturday will see a larger number and greater variety of them than ever before.

The high school band will be at the game Saturday and disperse music during the intermissions in the conflict. Every person in Clearfield who admires clean, vigorous sport should turn out to the coming game and encourage the team, which is probably the best that ever represented the institution.

Having a Good Time.

Editor the Progress.

Had a nice time, left garage at 4:15, arrived at Allport at 7:25 the same evening. Ran over a dog; hit a chicken; and stopped over to fight the lamp. Put up at Aldine hotel and are going on to tour to Hazleton tomorrow. Everything lovely, some hanging high.

L. C. Harman.

P. S.—Late reports are that the dog was killed.

Behind the half dozen automobiles of the Roosevelt party marched a thousand of the city's most prominent citizens, ministers, business men and leaders of the labor unions. And they were all Scranton people.

In Roosevelt District
Wilkes-Barre gave a reception of its own to Colonel Roosevelt an hour before Scranton was reached, and all through Luzerne county, the banner Roosevelt county of the United States in 1912, the people turned out by thousands at every crossroad and station to tell Colonel Roosevelt that they are with him as solidly as ever against Penrose and for Pinchot.

If further demonstration was needed to verify Colonel Roosevelt's statement that Pinchot is the only man who can beat Penrose and that Palmer is not in the race, it has been furnished through the fact that a recent Palmer and McCormack rally here filled only the town hall with 3000 people as compared with last night's incomparable demonstration.

In Democratic Reading
Democratic Reading, which filled its auditorium with 4000 at a noonday Pinchot rally and held 5000 more people at an overflow meeting in the Center Square, lent particular emphasis to Colonel Roosevelt's statement that decent Democrats have left Palmer for Pinchot and liquor Democrats have left him for Penrose.

Republican Scranton, or Lackawanna county, lent still stronger emphasis to Colonel Roosevelt's declaration that decent Republicans are flocking to Pinchot also because they cannot vote for Penrose and retain their self-respect.

Vigor in Colonel's Punch
And the spirit of the people is met by Colonel Roosevelt in no uncertain manner. He drives the punches into Penrose and Penroseism with ever-increasing vigor, swiftness and certainty of aim.

The Rev. T. T. Richards opened the meeting to the armory hosts here last night, referring to Colonel Roosevelt as the "seventeenth-inch slug gun of Progressivism, which will which to cover the retreat, we had

Each day sees A. Mitchell Palmer dwindle in size, politically, at least.

Vote for the Washington candidates for assembly—Woodward, Lippert and Boose—and insure three votes in favor of honest state government.

Colonel Roosevelt didn't bother with the right and left wings of the Penrose forces, but made his chief attack upon the center of the line.

With winter coming on the soldiers who are trying to kill each other in that European war may have a rest long enough to inquire what it is all about.

Good evening! Of course, you will be glad when the election is over, and you will be glad when it is over if you will help to elect good men to office.

President Wilson and eight members of his cabinet are electioneering for the Democratic ticket, and the job is by no means an easy one under the circumstances.

Even the Altoona Tribune, tied to Penrose as tight as it is, was forced to confess that the largest crowd in the history of the Mishler theater building greeted Colonel Roosevelt Tuesday evening.

What the intelligent voter cannot understand is why the Penrose Republicans are denouncing the Democrats for their blunders when the intelligent voter knows that it was Penrose who helped to place the Democrats in power.

Even before the European war is over the United States government should have a reckoning with the Marcos. Wireless company, which appears to think that it can do about as it pleases in the matter of sending messages which are likely to get the United States into an international squabble of words, if nothing more serious.

There is certain to be a big lot of families from the European nations emigrating to the United States after the war is over. Let us hope these forthcoming emigrants will appreciate the freedom of this country much more than do some of the hyphenated residents who are now here because they could not get along in their own countries.

LIBERAL RESPONSE

Indications point to the quick collection of the amount needed to liquidate the indebtedness against the Clearfield hospital. The men who have the matter in hand are meeting with very few rebuffs, the citizens generously subscribing to the fund because of their desire to see the hospital free from the burden which has for several years hung upon the shoulders of the trustees and in order that the beneficent offer of Astbury W. Lee may be made available.

The Clearfield hospital has been doing excellent work among the sick and injured, and it can be put in condition to do much more effective work in the future. There are some citizens who have been backward in giving financial aid to the hospital on the ground that he public has not been taken into the confidence of the officials of the institution, but this cause of complaint may be removed in the coming years through an annual itemized statement of the receipts and expenditures of the hospital such as are issued from institutions of the kind in other towns and cities of the state.

The public feels that it has a right to know what use has been made of the money it contributes to a hospital. Also, the public believes that the manner in which a hospital is managed should be made known in order that contributors may know whether or not there is wastefulness or lack of economy. No doubt the officials of the Clearfield hospital will give these matters their attention after the present financial condition of the hospital has been satisfactorily attended to. In the meantime the few remaining dollars necessary to pay off the debt should be subscribed so that the hospital may start the new year with a clean slate.

SMASH PENROSEISM

Colonel Roosevelt asks the voters of Pennsylvania to smash the Penrose machine. The colonel merely expresses the opinion of a large majority of the people of Pennsylvania, who have for several years blushed with shame when the evils of Penroseism were mentioned in their presence. Penroseism stands for all that is menacing to honest state government. It stands for monopoly, the run traffic and embezzlement to labor. There is no successful denial of this.

Penroseism cannot be smashed unless Penrose and every Penrose candidate is defeated at the polls. The good people of this state know that Penrose does not represent them; that he misrepresents them, in fact. There are enough friends of good government in this state to overwhelm Penrose and his followers if they combine their strength. There was never a better opportunity to deal the deathblow to Penroseism than there will be next Tuesday by defeating Penrose himself and all of the Penrose candidates.

Colonel Roosevelt is telling the people of this state that the only way to smash Penroseism is to elect Gifford Pinchot to the United States senate. Pinchot stands for everything which Penrose opposes—local option, justice to the wage earner, a cleaning out of the state government, honest state officials who will not squander the people's money, and everything else against which Penrose and his henchmen have arrayed themselves for years. Pinchot is the champion of the people's cause, and the people should rally to his support.

MOULTHROP WITH THE PEOPLE

Hon. A. S. Moulthrop, Washington party candidate for state senator, has been elected by the people of this state. As a member of the legislature he won a high place in the estimation of the people by his determined stand in favor of reforms in state and county administrations. It was through his efforts that the act of assembly providing for the payment of a percentage to county treasurers for handling money was repealed, thus saving to the taxpayers of Clearfield county something like thirty thousand dollars in the past eight years.

In a number of other instances Mr. Moulthrop has proven that he was faithful to the people and that his desire was to lessen the burdens of the taxpayers. He is a young man of ability, energy and judgment. He is active in advocating changes in the state administration which would bring about honest government and put a stop to the practices which have prevailed at the state capital for years and through which the people's money has been wasted.

Mr. Moulthrop has had experience as a legislator, and experience which will stand him in good stead when he enters the state senate. It is in the senate that most of the crooked work chargeable to Penroseism has its origin, and Mr. Moulthrop believes that he will be able to do as effective work in that body as he did in the lower house of the legislature. The people of Clearfield county know Mr. Moulthrop, and they know he is sincere and conscientious. This is why it can be predicted that Mr. Moulthrop will receive a large vote from voters of all political parties and that Clearfield county will give him a large majority to add to that he will receive in Center county.

Strictly Business
The old man: My daughter is too young to marry, sir!
The practical young one: I'm willing to wait! All I want is an option.—Puck.

Explained
"Your daughter plays some very robust pieces."
"She's got a bean in the parlor," growled pa, "and that loud music is to drown the sound of her mother washing the dishes."—Pittsburgh Post.

"If"
On one occasion a census clerk, in scanning one of the forms to see if it had been properly filled up, noticed the figures 120 and 112 under the headings, "Age of father, if living," and "Age of mother, if living."
"But your parents were never so old, were they?" asked the astonished clerk.
"No," was the reply, "but they would have been if living."

OBITUARY
Flynn.
Martin M. Flynn, a pioneer lumberman and raftsmen, of Grampian, died at the Grampian hotel, where he made his home, Tuesday morning at 6:30.
The deceased was a life-long resident in this county as being a very active man in lumbering circles in the early days. He was 72 years of age, having been born in May, 1842 in Grampian. He was proprietor of the Grampian hotel in the early eighties. In 1888 he was candidate for one of Clearfield county on the Democratic ticket, and was defeated for the office. For the past few years he has been doing draying and was in his death he was constable of Grampian borough. His wife preceded him to his grave several years ago.
The deceased is survived by two sons and six daughters. Funeral services will probably be held in Grampian on Thursday. Interment will be made in the Catholic cemetery.

Wingert
Samuel Wingert, one of the oldest and best known residents of Brady township, passed away at his home near Luthersburg, early Sunday morning.
Mr. Wingert was born in 1847 in Jefferson county, and in 1874 married Sarah Buchert, nine children being born to them, as follows: Mrs. Jane Hummel, of Curwensville; Mary, of Bradford; Mrs. Clarence Beish, of West Virginia; Florence, at home; James, of Curwensville; Charles, of Bradford; Harvey, of the state of Washington; Silas and Glen, at home.
He was a member of the Brady lodge of the K. of P. of Salem, who had charge of the funeral which was held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the late home.

MAP OF THE EASTERN THEATRE OF WAR

This map gives an accurate idea of the relative location of the scenes of the two great engagements that are now being fought by the Germans, Austrians and Russians in the Eastern Theatre of War. In the northern battle field at the Niemen river recent reports stated that a successful advancing German body, a-b, was pressing back a Russian defending body, c-d, while down south, near the upper Vistula, a much larger Russian body, g-h, is advancing against a correspondingly larger German force, e-f. The result of the action between e-f and g-h would ultimately control the movements of the action a-b, c-d.

Prohibition a Success.

Prohibition has been a success in Oregon, Eugene, Albany and Corvallis, leading cities of the Willamette valley, cite their prosperity from the time when they went dry.

Not a foot of paving was in any of these cities when they went dry, seven or eight years ago. Today they are well paved, their sidewalks are excellent, splendid stores and public buildings abound, fine residences are numerous.

Up until the present year, Salem, the only other city in the Willamette Valley which could compare with them, continued to have the licensed saloon. The saloon word from the city was that the three dry cities were much to be ground on which to set ponds. Certain it is that they have grown in population much more rapidly.

West Virginia Prospers.

"Our police courts practically idle. They say you can't enforce prohibition. You can't! Last week, for the first time in the history of the state, a grand jury adjourned without finding a single offense worthy of indictment."

So said Fred G. Blue in an address at Memorial Hall, Columbus, Ohio, recently. Mr. Blue declared that prohibition has not hurt business. "Wheeling has turned her brewery into a packing house," he said, "and it employs three times as many men as it did in Charleston. The brewery has become a plant, and we are to have cheaper ice. One block in Wheeling where there were 14 saloons has seen every one of these places reared for other business, some at advanced rents. A big dealer in that block writes that his business has increased 35 per cent since he went dry."

Mr. Blue declared that the success of prohibition in West Virginia is due to the nature of the law, which is to draw out the physicians cannot give a prescription for wine or whiskey.

lessens the value of property and raises the fire insurance rates.

When a man engages in a traffic which is a violation of the property laws, he is liable to the burden of taxation which promotes crime, disease and social degradation. The community then is forced to pay the price of the man's private gain.

BURGESS ASKS CITIZENS TO CLEAN PREMISES

Burgess Callahan desires the citizens of Clearfield to clean up about their premises before the snows of winter fall. He has issued the following proclamation.

To the Citizens of Clearfield:
Cleanliness is conducive to good health and good morals, and I wish to thank everybody for what has been accomplished in the past summer towards keeping our town clean, for we have not had a communicable disease for almost five weeks, which is a most creditable record.

Now I kindly ask you to clean up. Do not let the beautiful snow cover up your filth. Clean up! Clean up the lots, the front yards, back yards and all the alleys. Do not be afraid you will pick up something you did not put there. Clean up everything and our people will rise up and call you blessed.

Your Honored Servant,
HOBART CALLAHAN, Burgess.

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

(Copyright, 1914, by Harold MacGrath)

"Don't worry none about me, Betty. I never take no chances. Now I'm goin' 'int' th' village an' bring back th' sawbones. He'll tell us what 't do."

The village doctor shook his grizzled head gravely.

"She's been hurt and shocked at the same time. It will be many days before she comes around to herself. Just let her do as she pleases. Only keep an eye on her so that she doesn't wander off and get lost. I'll watch the newspapers and if I come across anything which bears upon the case I'll notify you."

But he searched the newspapers in vain, for the simple fact that he did not think to glance over the old ones.

The village took a good deal of interest in the affair. They gossiped about it and strolled out to the Barnes' cottage to satisfy their curiosity. One thing was certain to their simple minds: some day Barnes would get a great sum of money for his kindness. They had read about such things in the family story paper. She was a rich man's daughter; the ring on the unknown's finger would have fitted out a fleet.

Florence was soon able to walk about. Ordinary conversation she seemed to understand; but whenever the past was broached she would shake her head with frowning eyes. Her main diversion consisted of sitting on the sand dunes and gazing out at sea.

One day a stranger came to town. He said he represented a life insurance company and was up here from Boston to take a little vacation. He sat on the hotel porch that evening, surrounded by an admiring audience. The stranger had been all over the world, so it seemed. He spoke familiarly of St. Petersburg, Vladivostok, Shanghai, as the villagers—some of them—might have spoken of Boston. There were one or two old timers among the audience. They had been to all these parts. The stranger knew what he was telling about. After telling of his many voyages he asked if there was a good bathing beach nearby. He was told that he would find the most suitable spot near Captain Barnes' cottage just outside the village.

"An' say, Mister, seen anything in th' papers about a missin' young woman?" asked some one.

"Missin' young woman? What's that?"

The man told the story of Florence's leap into the sea and her subsequent arrival at the cape.

"That's funny," said the stranger. "I don't recollect reading about any young woman being lost at sea. But those big liners are always keeping such things under cover. Hoodooes the ship, they say, and turns prospective passengers to other lines. It hurts business. What's the young girl look like?"

Florence was described minutely. The stranger tasted in his chair and smoked. Finally he spoke.

"She probably was insane. That's the way generally with insane people. They can't see water or look off a tall building without wanting to jump. My business is insurance, and we've got the thing figured pretty close to the ground. They used to get the best of us on the suicide game. A man would take out a large policy today and tomorrow he'd blow his head off, and we'd have to pay his wife. But nowadays a policy is not worth the paper it's written on if a man commits suicide under two years."

"You ain't tryin' to insure anybody in town, are you?"

"Oh, no. No work for me when I'm on my vacation. Well, I'm going to bed; and tomorrow morning I'll go out to Captain Barnes' beach and have a good swim. I'm no sailor, but I like water."

He honestly enjoyed swimming. Shilly the next morning he was in the water, frolicking about as playfully as a boy. He had all the time in the world. Over his shoulder he saw two women wandering down toward the beach. Deeper he went, farther out, he was a bold swimmer, but that did not prevent a sudden and violent attack of cramps. And it was a rare piece of irony that the poor girl should save the life of that scoundrel who was without pity or mercy. As she saw his face a startled frown marred her brow. But she could not figure out the puzzle. Had she ever seen the man before? She did not know, she could not tell. Why could not she remember? Why must her poor head ache so when she tried to pierce the wall of darkness which surrounded her mentally?

The man thanked her feebly, but not in his heart. When he had sufficiently recovered he returned to the village and sought the railway station, where the Western Union had its office.

"I want to send a code message to my firm. Do you think you can follow it?"

"I can try," said the operator.

The code was really Slant, and when the long message was signed it was signed by the name Vron.

The day after the news came that Florence had jumped overboard out the banks, Vron with a dozen other men had started out to comb all the fishing villages along the New England coast. Somewhere along the way he felt confident that he would learn whether the girl was dead or alive.

Braine Took Florence Aboard the Chartered Yacht.

take a hand in. So the following night he departed for Boston, from there to New York. He proceeded at once to the apartment of the princess, where Braine declared that he himself would go to the obscure village and claim Florence as his own child. But to insure absolute success they would charter Morse's yacht and steam right up into the primitive harbor.

When Vron left the apartment Norton saw him. He was a man of impulses, and he had found by experience that first impulses are generally the best. He did not know who Vron was. Any man who called on the Princess Perigoff while Braine was with her would be worth following.

On the other hand, Vron recognized the reporter instantly and with that ever-ready and alert mind of his set about to lure the young man into a trap out of which he might not easily come.

Norton decided to follow his man. He might be going on a wild-goose chase, he reasoned; still his first impulses had hitherto served him well. He looked careworn. He was convinced that Florence was dead, despite the assertions of Jones to the contrary. He had gone over all the mishaps which had taken place and he was now absolutely convinced that his whimsical friend Braine and the Princess Perigoff were directly concerned. Florence had either been going to or coming from the apartment. And that memorable day of the abduction the princess had been in the dry goods shop.

Vron took a downtown surface car, and Norton took the same. He sat huddled in a corner, never suspecting that Vron was watching him from a corner of his eye. Norton was not keen today. The thought of Florence kept running through his head.

The car stopped and Vron got off. He led Norton a winding course which at length ended at the door of a tenement building. Norton entered. Norton paused, wondering what next to do, now that his man had reached his destination. Well, since he had followed him all this distance he must make an effort to find out who he was and what he was going to do. Cautiously he entered the hallway. As he was about to lay his hand on the newel post of the dilapidated stairs the floor dropped from under his feet and he was precipitated into the cellar.

This tenement belonged to the Black Hundred, it concealed a thousand doors and a hundred traps. Its history was as dark as its hallways.

When Vron and his companion, who had been waiting for him, de-scented into the cellar they found the reporter insensible. They bound, blindfolded, and gagged him quickly.

"Saunders," said Vron, "you tell Corrigan that I've a sailor for him tonight, and that I want this sailor booked for somewhere south of the equator. Tell him to say to the master that this fellow is ugly and disobedient. A tramp freighter, whose captain is a bully. Do you understand me?"

"I get you. But there's no need to go to Corrigan this trip. Bannock is in port and sails tonight for Norway. That's far enough."

"Bannock?" The very man. Well, Mr. Norton, reporter and amateur detective, I guess we've got you fast enough this time. You may or may not come back alive. Go and bring around a taxi, some one you can trust. I'll dope the reporter while you're gone.

Long hours afterward Norton opened his aching eyes. He could hardly move and his head buzzed abominably. What had happened? What was the meaning of this slow rise and fall of his bed? Shanghai?

"Come out of that now, ye skunk!" roared a voice down the companionway.

"Shanghai?" the reporter murmured. He sat up and ran through his pockets. Not a sou-markee, not a match even, and a second glance told him that the clothes he wore were not his own. "They've landed me this time," Shanghai? What the devil am I going to do?"

"Dye hear me?" bawled the strident voice again.

Norton looked about desperately for some weapon of defense. He saw an engineer's spanner on the floor by the bunk across the way, and with no small physical effort he succeeded in obtaining it. He stood up, his hand behind his back.

"All right, me bucko! I'll come down an' git ye!"

A pair of enormous boots began to appear down the companionway, and there gradually rose up from them a man as wide as a church door and as deep as a well.

"Wait a moment," said Norton, gripping the spanner. "Let us have a perfect understanding right off the bat."

"We're going t' have it, matey. Don't ye worry none."

Norton raised the spanner, and, dizzy as he was, faced this seafaring Hercules courageously.

"I've been shanghai'd, and you know it. Where are we bound?"

"Copenhagen."

"Well, for a month or more you'll beat me up whenever the opportunity offers. But I merely wish to warn you that if you do you'll find a heap of trouble waiting for you the next time you drop your mudhook in North America."

"Is that so?" said the giant, eying the spanner and the shaking hand that held it aloft.

"It is. I'll take your orders and do the best I can, because you've got the upper hand. But, God is witness, you'll pay for every needless blow you strike. Now what do you want me to do?"

"Lay down that spanner an' come on deck, I'll tell ye what t' do. I was goin' t' while th' daylight out o' ye; t' ye're somethin' av a man. Drop the spanner first."

Norton hesitated. As lithe as a tiger the bulk of a man sprang at him and crushed him to the floor, wrenching away the spanner. Then the giant took Norton by the scruff of his neck and banged him up the steps to the deck.

"I ain't goin' t' hurt ye. I had t' show ye that no spanner ever bothered Mike Bannock. Now, d' know what a cook's galley is?"

"I do," said Norton, breathing hard.

"Well, hike there an' start in with peelin' spuds, an' don't waste 'em n' ther. That'll be all fer th' present. Ye were due for a wallop'n' but I kinda like yer spunk."

So Jim stumbled down to the cook's galley and grimly set to work at the potatoes. It might have been far worse. But here he was, likely to be on the high seas for months, and no way of notifying Jones what had happened. The outlook was anything but cheerful. But a vague hope awoke in his heart. If they were still after him might it not signify that Florence lived.

Meantime Braine had not been idle. According to Vron the girl's memory was in bad shape, so he had not the least doubt of bringing her back to New York without mishap. Once he had her there the game would begin in earnest. He played his cards exceedingly well. Steaming up into the little fishing harbor with a handsome yacht in itself would allay any distrust. And he wore a capital disguise too. Everything went well till he laid his hand on Florence's shoulder. She gave a startled cry and ran over to Barnes, clinging to him wildly.

"No, no!" she cried.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mix the Sage Tea and Sulphur (from the home drug store) with a little water. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores. Knew as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Tonic", avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and at a price. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, but as it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully and glossy soft and luxuriant.
